There are hitherto known a medical image transmitting system for transmitting medical images such as X-ray images over a communications line. As a medical image transmitting system, there are known a compact X-ray device described in Japanese Unexamined Patent Publication No. 61-169548 and a compact X-ray device with an image cassette as described in Japanese Unexamined Patent Publication No. 62-60136. These compact X-ray devices each have an image memory and a communications interface connected via a communications line to transmit and receive the medical images. When the medical image received via a communications line is stored in an image memory, it is read in a still picture mode during which the medical image is displayed on a monitor. In the conventional compact X-ray devices, it is difficult to simultaneously display plural medical images on plural display devices. It is impossible to simultaneously transmit and receive plural medical images over the communications line. It is an object of the present invention to provide an image transmitting apparatus which can simultaneously display plural medical images on a plurality of display devices connected to a network, and transmit and receive plural medical images over the communications line. The above and other objects can be achieved by the present invention which is made of the following constructions. (1) An image transmitting apparatus comprising an image memory; an image transmitting unit connected to the image memory via a communications line for transferring medical images stored in the
