In addition to Real Player Motion Technology, FIFA 21 introduced the True Player Motion engine (TPME) by E3 2018. E3 2018 was the first time the Real Player Motion Technology and TPME were integrated into a game of FIFA. You'll now see the characteristics of what TPME is capable of during a real-life player's game-winning moments. In FIFA 20, there were some major changes to gameplay tactics and AI, and we wanted to keep that momentum going. We're pleased that FIFA Ultimate Team has been constantly growing, and the card updates in FIFA 21, despite not being on the first-party line, had a huge effect on the World Cup squad-building side. We've also taken the opportunity to introduce new ways of playing in FIFA 21, like the explosive, all-new Sprint [Cross Field] pass. We want to ensure that every aspect of gameplay is relevant and that we're able to capture that in gameplay. Playing on PlayStation consoles has become increasingly important to the FIFA franchise. Over the last few years, we've seen increases in soccer player count on PlayStation, and we're seeing that trend continue. During the same period, there was a big adoption of FIFA on PlayStation consoles, and we're excited to introduce a whole host of new features. With the introduction of a new wave of cards, our community will be able to create their dream Ultimate Team, a 1-on-1 match with a pro like Lionel Messi, or build an all-star team with the best of the past, present and future. We're also introducing new ways to play and training sessions in FIFA 21. The Match Day experience in FIFA 21 is updated with interactive touches to help you play to your strengths. The most important player stats that you're used to seeing on the pitch in previous FIFA games are now available on FIFA Ultimate Team. By tapping on your squad, you'll see all players with an active contract and their contract details. You'll also see who's on your radar, which highlights which players you're keeping an eye on as they come onto your radar. This will be expanded in the future, and we'll share more about how to leverage this in a future blog post. The Job Board will continue to grow in FIFA
